

COVID19 - Services offered by supermarkets for elderly, disabled, vulnerable people, carers and key workers – May 2020

Those who are clinically extremely vulnerable (shielding)

Those who are clinically extremely vulnerable (shielding) should have received a letter from the Chief Medical Officer asking them to self-isolate.

The letter explains they should contact their local authority for support to get essential food supplies if friends or family can't help.

All supermarkets in Wales offering home delivery have been sent datasets of those who are shielding.

Those who are vulnerable, or self-isolating but not shielding

Should ask friends, family or neighbours who are well to go out and get food and other essentials or use online services. If this is not possible, then the public sector, business, charities, and the general public are gearing up to help. Voluntary organisations that can help can be found at: <https://thirdsectorsupport.wales/> can advise on support available to help with such activities as food shopping.

Most of the major supermarkets have ways of paying online, such as e-vouchers or gift cards. The person shopping on their behalf can use them in-store. To find out about payment options, visit:

- your supermarket's website

Volunteer gift cards

These can be purchased online and used by people other than the purchaser to buy shopping in store for them.

These are generally purchased on-line, and then an email is sent with a barcode to either the purchaser, or a nominated recipient who can then use this to purchase goods in store. This enables contactless payment for both volunteers and store staff.

Several supermarkets have now developed these.
